Presenting the 1965 Jester...

To a man who probes deeply into the thoughts of his students; who challenges their powers of concentration; who jolts them into immediate awareness of the present, we extend congratulations for a job well done.

To an instructor who dares his students to defend the minority; who forces them to form sound opinions; who penetrates their minds with debatable concepts, we offer a sincere thank you for teaching them to think.

To a person who motivates the desire of his students to become better citizens; who stimulates their appreciation of America; who educates tomorrow's voters, we bestow a very distinct honor.

With great pride, we, the Jester Staff of 1965, dedicate this book to Mr. Lloyd Wolf.

"Do you understand? Well, then, explain it to the class."

"But, Mr. Wolf, you can't send me to the office. You need every Goldwater fan you can get."

"It remains true that the future of America rests upon its youth. America will remain great only to the extent to which you believe in the American heritage."

Mary Magruder Smith

Transmitting Memories via Telstar..

Floats, football, and finery transmitted the memories of Knoxville High School alumni via TELSTAR, the theme of 1964 Homecoming. An assembly in Jensen Gymnasium, Friday, October 23, opened the two-day festivities. This assembly, adding to the traditional occurences, was designed to allow the King and Queen to reign over the entire series of e tts. The student body cheered wildly for victory over Carthage while they waited anxiously for the announcement. Bob Davis, Master of Ceremonies, revealed the royalty's identity, "Queen Dee Woolsey and King Geral Mathews!" Immediately the air was filled with applause of approval. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bartee placed the crowns on the heads of the royal couple and presented them with flowers. The Maids of Honor and their Escorts were Sherry Little and Hildred Kennett and Betsy Anderson and Don Moffitt. Attending these senior girls were Junior Marilyn Knox, Sophomore Cheryl Dugan, and Freshman Melody Howerter.

The Queen was escorted from the stage to her float, and the parade began. Playing the theme song, "Telstar," the Marching Band led the stately procession down Main Street after the assembly. Impressive floats displayed ingenuity and cooperation making difficult the decision of the judges in awarding the prizes to G.A.A., the Junior Class, and F.H.A. Although it was not eligible for a prize, the most significant float was the Royalty Float which carried the newly-crowned King and Queen.

Following the pre-game pep rally and bonfire, the Bullets made ready, aimed and fired while the onlookers responded to the rhythm of the cheerleaders. Soaring hopes for victory remained high during the tremendous half-time show, and an equilibrium was reached at the altitude of 7-7, as the Bullets tied the Blue Boys.

Launching the ceremonies Saturday evening was the elegant, formal coronation of the King and Queen by last year's royalty, Howard Gibson and Carol Little Hinkle. The seniors had strived to convert the athletic gymnasium into a regal ballroom, and the result was "out of this world." Giant letters spelling TELSTAR and the blue lights accenting the make-believe night sky created an atmosphere for dancing to the music of Dick Higbee and his Orchestra.

Bob Davis displayed his humor as Master of Ceremonies.

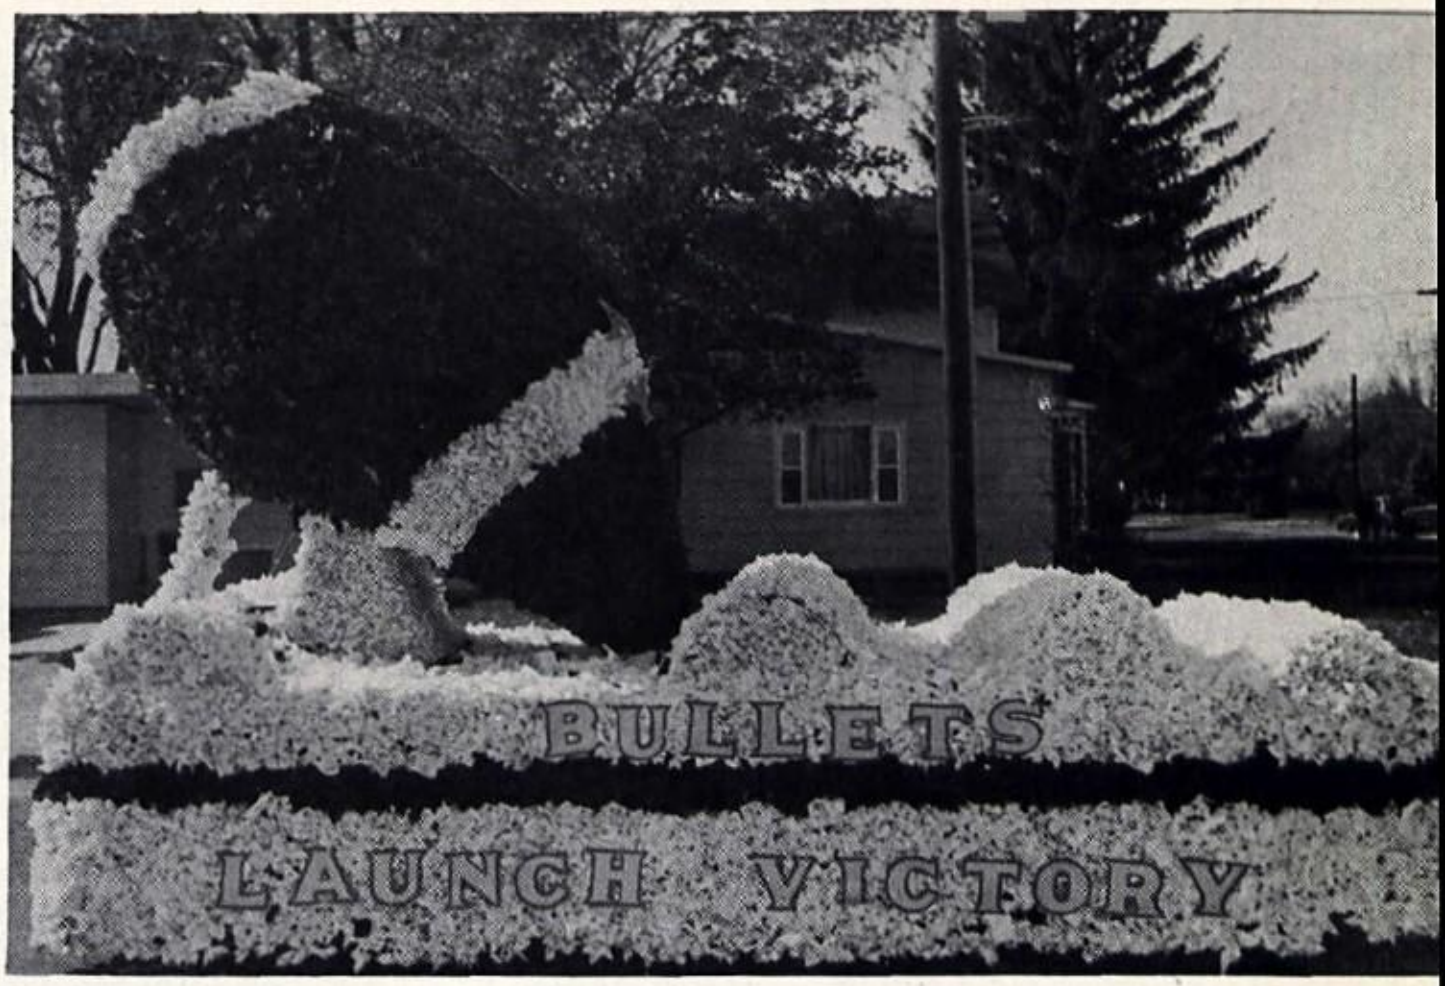
The Senior Marshalls were Steve White and John Spurgeon.

Last year's King Howard Gibson and Queen Carol Little Hinkle crowned the royalty. Crowns were carried by Lynne Hedbloom and Dean McKillip.

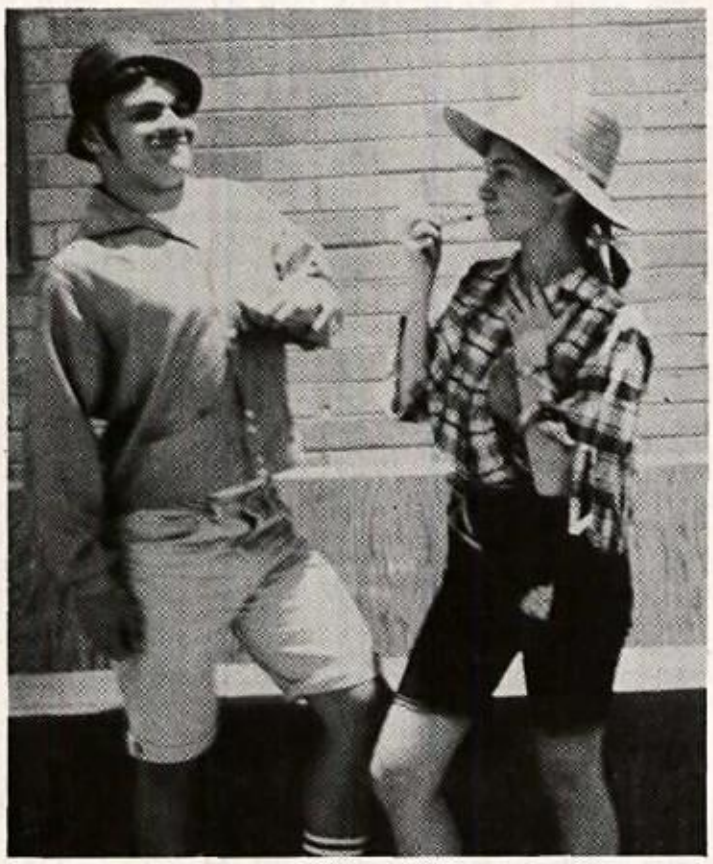
G.A.A. placed first with their float.



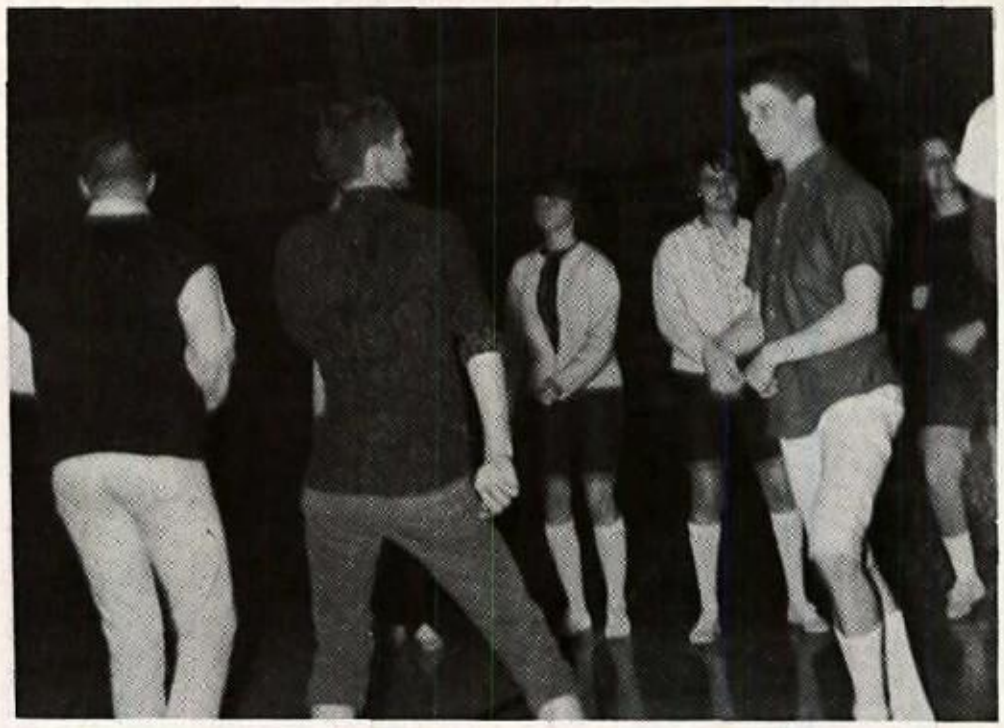
The Maids of Honor were Marilyn Knox, Cheryl Dugan, and Melody Howerter.

The juniors worked until 1:17 A.M. to finish their second place float.

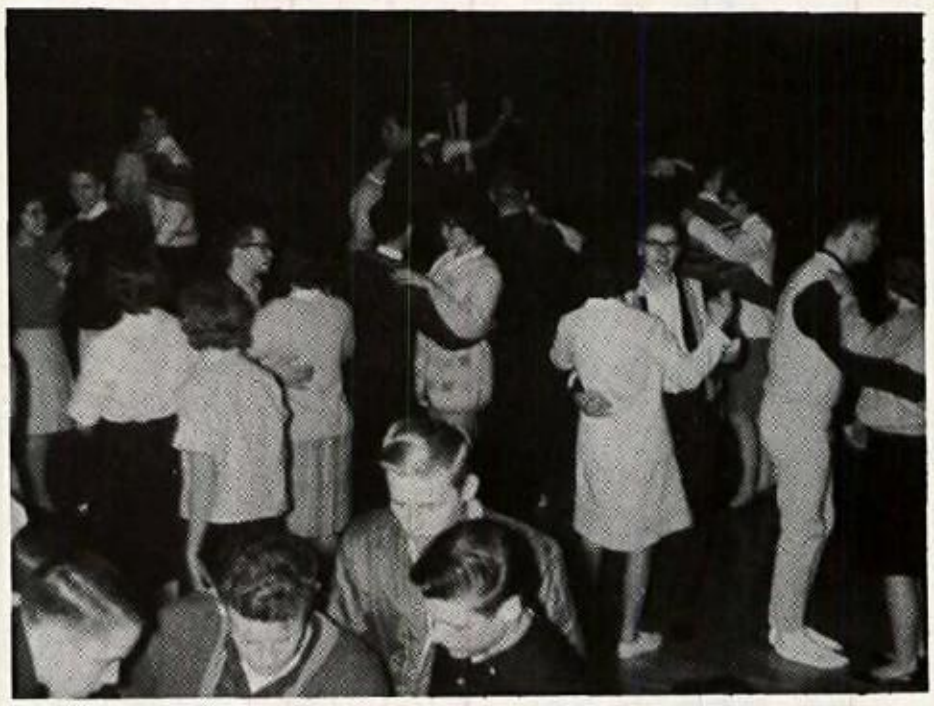
Enjoying school dances...



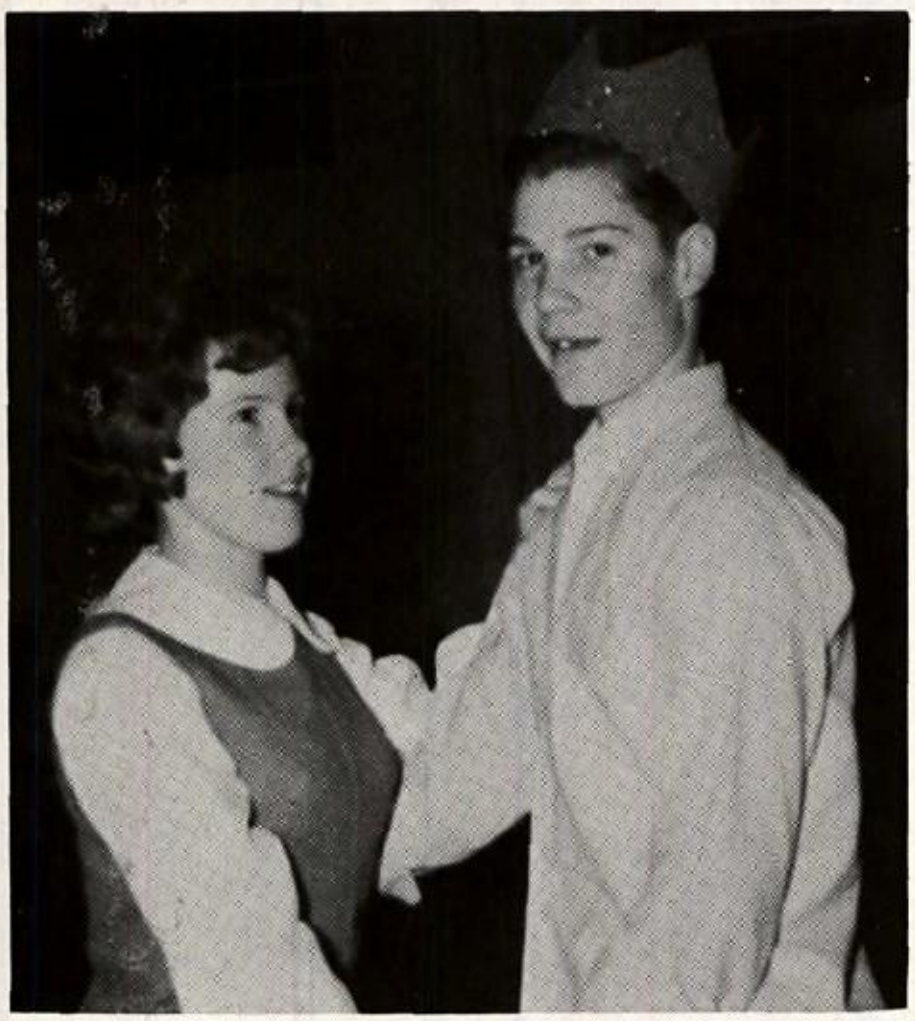
George Soper and Joan Cottom were chosen King and Queen of the Sadie Hawkins Dance.



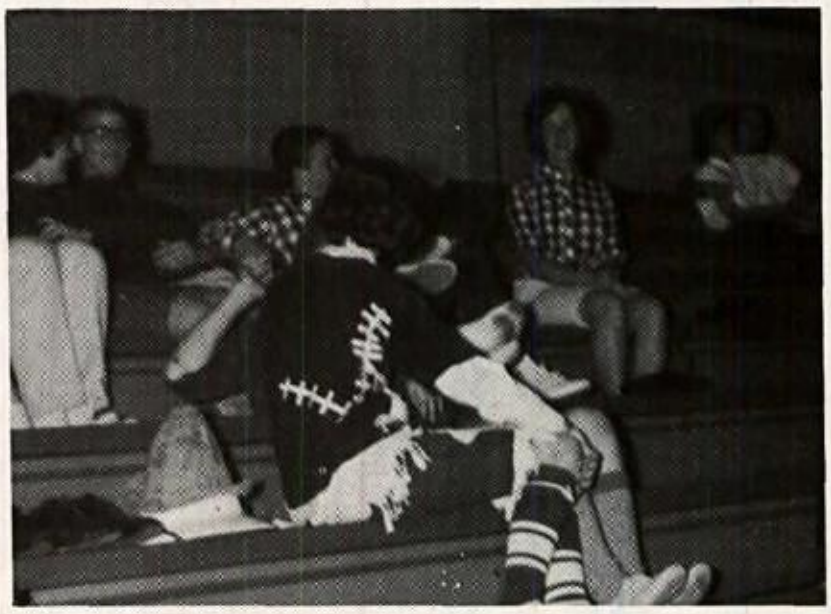
"May I cut in?"



Dances proved to be popular meeting places throughout the school year.



Bruce Johnson as Mr. I displayed his winning ways.



Other activities besides dancing went on at the dances.

The Knoxville Chapter of the National Honor Society functioned effectively this year under its purpose of creating an enthusiasm for scholarship, stimulating a desire to render service, promoting worthy leadership, and encouraging the development of character in students of KHS.

The major activity of NHS was the acceptance of new members. Those students accepted received their membership cards and pins at an assembly in March. A banquet was held for the new members, their parents, the faculty, and the members of the Board.

In order to raise money for the banquet, the old members typed and ran errands for the teachers and sold candy after school and sandwiches at games. The banquet was held with the help of the PTA and the Student Council. NHS accepted twenty new members; these twenty new members plus the twelve old members gave the National Honor Society an impressive membership of thirty-two.

This year's organization was guided by Betsy Anderson, President; Vada Peterson, Vice-President; Sheryl Brown, Secretary-Treasurer; and Mrs. German and Mrs. Batell, Advisors.

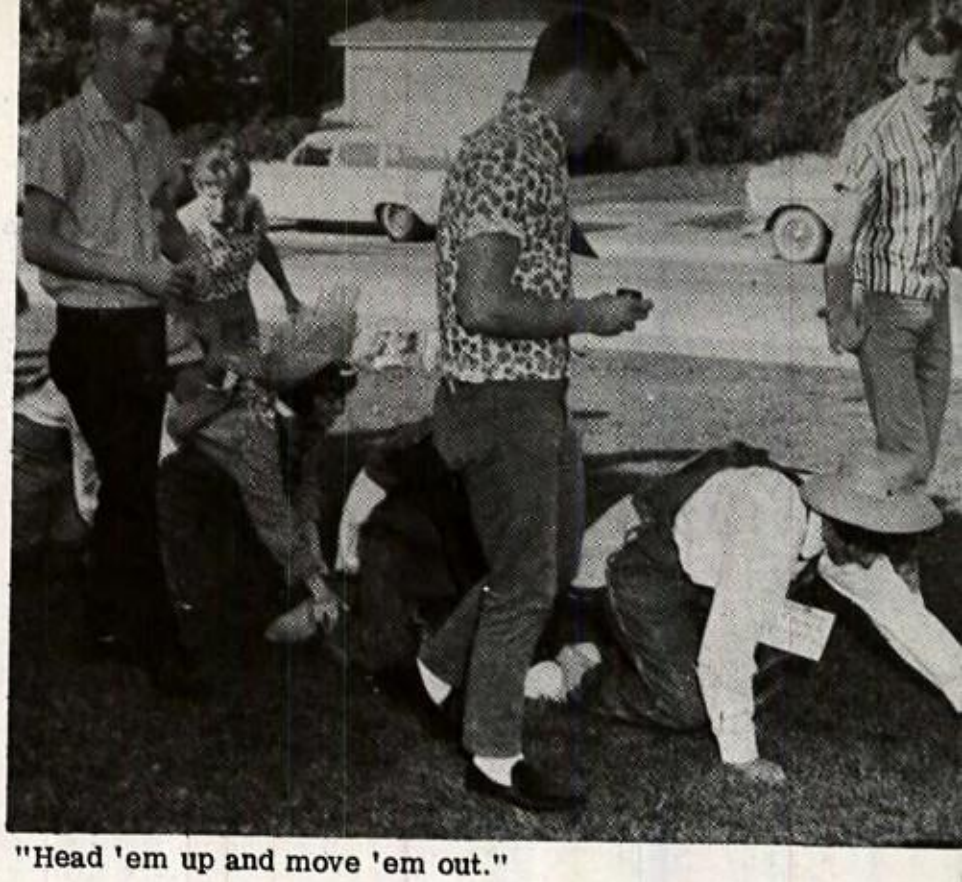
Becoming a member of high school...

As every Freshman Class does, the Freshman Class this year traditionally entered their years of high school ahead with one day devoted to obeying the commands of the initiating seniors. Freshmen distinguished themselves from other students by wearing bib-overalls, work shirts, and ties in a backward manner, and one work shoe and one high-heel. The freshman boys wore make-up, but the girls did not; both carried a favorite toy and bucket.

Freshmen were met at their buses and the school doors by seniors anxious to have their first commands obeyed. Praising and buttoning to the seniors occupied much of the time during the day. Near the end of the school day the freshmen were put through various activities, such as a shoe scramble and a tire race on the football field. As the student body looked on, the climax of initiation came when Steve Stone and Anne Williams were crowned king and queen by Dave Thompson and Sharyn Hedbloom, initiation royalty of their former Freshman Class.



"Head 'em up and move 'em out."

". . .a little dab will do you."

Steve Stone and Anne Williams were chosen king and queen of the 1964 Freshman Initiation.

Denise Earnst and Mark Harris were crowned queen and king of the festivities by Ronna Williams and Dave Asbury.

and of clubs...

Various Clubs in the school again faced the annual event of initiating their new members. Some clubs chose a formal initiation; others chose the initiation characterized by stunts performed by the new members under the guidance of present club members. The initiates usually took their tasks in stride, because in the back of their minds they visualized the time when they, too, would be allowed to initiate. For some of those students who initiated this year, perhaps old memories of their former initiations were dusted and polished. The hope was that the initiations held pleasure for those who obeyed the commands, as well as for those who gave them.

Presenting the Junior Class Play...

The cause of the performing arts was uniquely advanced by the Junior Class presentation of No Boys Allowed. Comedy drama reached a new high with sparkling performances from a cast that responded to enthusiastic audiences.

That singular bit of Americana, the high school girl slumber party, provided the backdrop for such perplexities as teen-age vernacular, a mysterious prowler, prank-intentioned boys, bewildered oldsters, and a nonplussed maid. This particular slumber party---which obviously gave rise to the play title No Boys Allowed---was concluded happily with all problems resolved.

With the play's final curtain came the resounding plaudits that indicated audience approval. The weeks of time and effort put forth by the cast and behind-the-scene workers were repaid as all juniors involved in the production realized that the fun and enjoyment of putting on a play is surpassed only by the fun and enjoyment gained by a receptive audience.

Surmounting the trials and tribulations of the evening, Mr. Midnight is finally apprehended.

Setting the final stage...

The stage was set for laughter as the Senior Class presented its annual play, this year entitled Holy Meteors. Clarence Stillwell, a teenage genius, is forever endangering the sanity of his family through his scientific projects. His latest, a powerful radio transmitter, puts the whole town in chaos when its intermittent blasts of "Come in, Mars," ruin all the television programs. Clarence truly believes he is reaching Mars, but his sisters are tired of his whole project. He seems to be using too much of their nail polish for his radio tubes.

The sisters decide to teach Clarence a lesson by having friends dress as Martians and give him the scare of his life. But Mr. Stillwell has the same idea, and he engages a boy to hook up to Clarence's radio and deliver a message from Mars. When two sets of Martians appear on the scene, all is pure laughter. However, when a third message appears, supposedly from the real Mars, everyone begins to wonder about the capacities of Clarence's machine.

This episode is only one of the many humorous surprises presented by the seniors.

"But it's in the interest of science. . ."

School Board President Julius "Judd" Block presented the main address at the 1964 Prom banquet.

Dancing beneath the Harbor Lights...

Time passed slowly for the juniors as they were making preparations for the Junior-Senior Prom, but many seniors saw one of the major events of their last year coming all too quickly.

Both juniors and seniors dined in the candle-lit cafeteria on May 2, 1964. The nautically-named foods, the fish nets on the walls, and the miniature anchors on the curtains put couples in the mood for the atmosphere awaiting them in Jensen Gymnasium.

Upon entering the gym, the couples could clearly see that the juniors had spent weeks planning the decor. An enormous lighthouse was erected in the middle of the floor, and its rays shed light on the dancers below. For those not wanting to dance the entire evening, the north-east corner of the gym (a dangerous reef) was roped off and couples wandered there to gaze at the moon. Tables with quaint checkered cloths were arranged in the opposite corner of the gym, and those not busy dancing or gazing at the moon were sipping punch and eating cookies.

The seafaring atmosphere was further enhanced as Russ Deitrich's band caused all hands on deck to be enchanted by the notes floating on melodic waves from the ship-like stage.

The juniors were proud of their prom, and they hoped the seniors embarked upon their Bon Voyage to the tune of "Harbor Lights."

They would have danced all night, but curfew was at 12:00 A. M.

This majestic lighthouse provided a scenic background for the 1964 Prom.

The Melody Misses entertained at the dance which followed the banquet.

Russ Deitrich's Dance Orchestra serenaded to the mood of Harbor Lights.

Juniors put finishing touches on the Prom decorations.

Students were served refreshments while they relaxed between dances.

Each musical organization worked hard this year to be successful in the projects and activities of the Music Department. During the first of the year the Marching Band performed for football games and parades. Well-coordinated marching feet and the well-developed musical abilities of the members combined to win the Marching Band first place in the annual Christmas parade. Then concert and contest season came with individuals and ensembles, as well as the Band, anticipating possession of the coveted blue ribbon of success.

The Orchestra, too, was busy with its projects. With the skills of intonation and balance mastered, the Orchestra performed at concerts and went to contest hopeful that they would do their best to please themselves and their audience.

Mr. Knapp was assisted in making decisions concerning the music students and money-making campaigns by the Band Council made up of representatives from each musical organization. He also worked hard to prepare the intermediate and cadet organizations for the time when they will be helpful additions to the high school Band and Orchestra.

caring for the fundamentals of education. . .governing school life, pointing out the needs, to know-ledge.

Dear Woosie.

It took me almost six years to get around to really knowing you and to discover how much I had missed for six years. Boy was I slipping! You have a magnetic personality and a wonderful way about you that puts everyone at ease and makes them glad to be there, with you.

Some of my favorite memories are the things I've been able to do with you. Thanks for being practically perfect and for being Mary Woosie and for being an IO in disguise (de skies). Thanks for being adorable. I've never seen anyone who was sad when you were around. Dee-will smile.

I will think about you and write to you and come to see you (if it is practically possible) this summer and, of course, after this summer. And I'll remember trying to think of a way to write in your book so that you would know how fond I am of you. Best of everything Woosie, always.

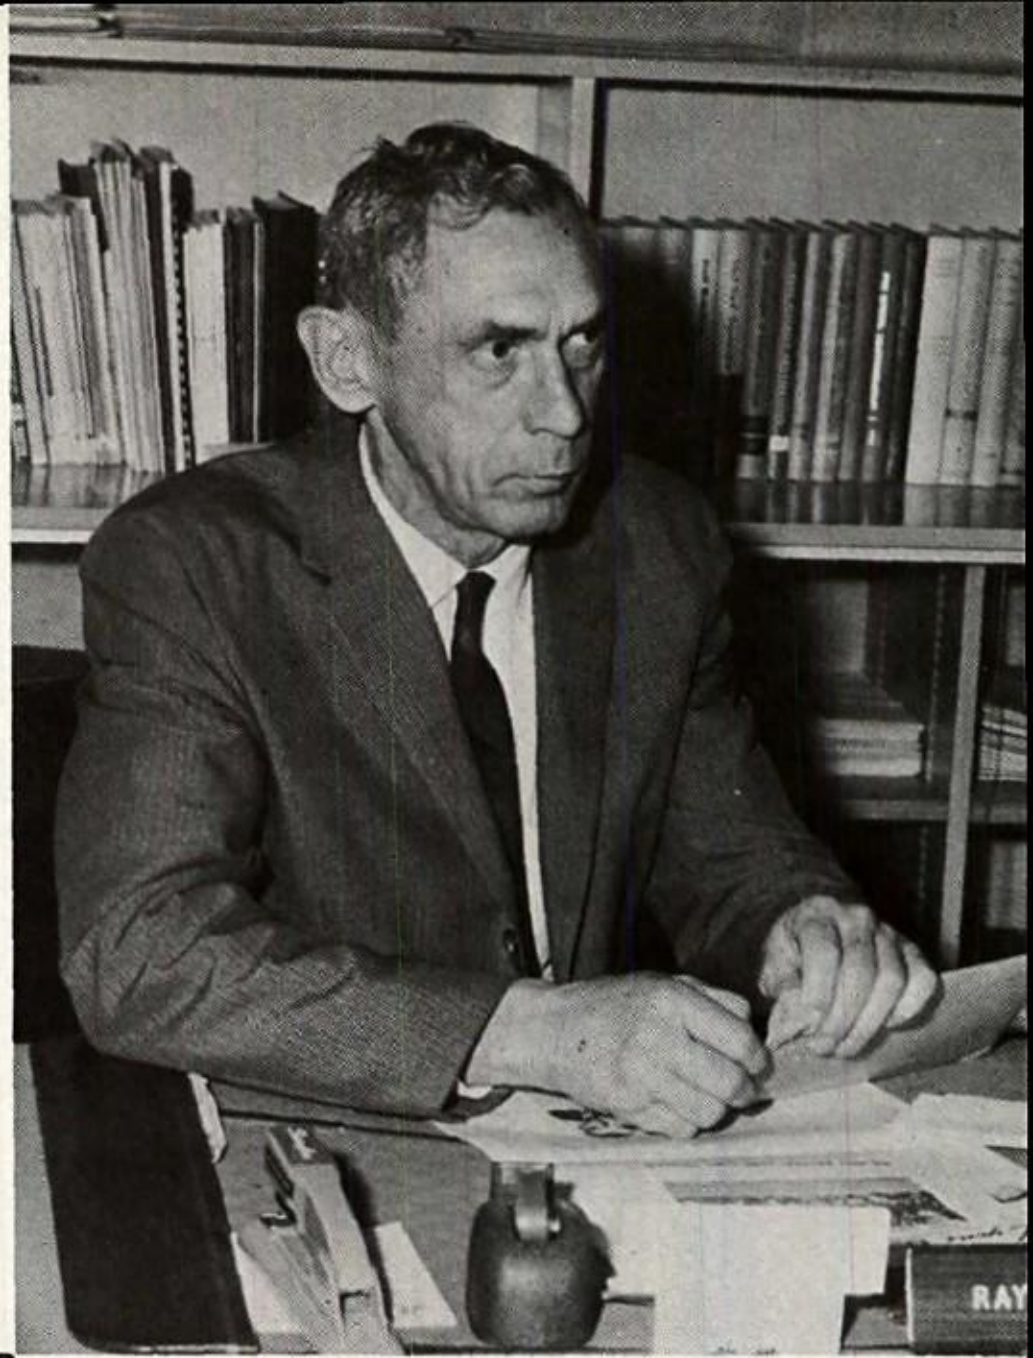
Love,
Betsy

To you who are students in Knoxville Junior-Senior High School I call to your attention again the importance of obtaining the maximum benefits possible from your educational opportunities. Never was the need for an adequately trained citizenry more needed than at the present time. No longer can we think of education only as the sustaining forces for our democracy, but in addition we must prepare ourselves for world citizenship and responsibility. The responsibility for providing adequate education for you becomes even greater when we realize that the youth of today are being prepared for a future largely undetermined as a result of scientific and technological advancements. This responsibility cannot be borne alone by an administrative and teaching staff and a board of education, but must be shared by every citizen in our community. The building programs recently completed in this district are evidence of a unit-wide interest in providing increased educational opportunities for which you should be very appreciative.

As Superintendent of the Knoxville Community Unit Schools, I shall, with the support of the Board of Education and all the citizens of this community, give my best efforts to both the increase and the improvement of your opportunities for education.

Raymond Bartee

Mr. Harding C. Williams, Principal



Mr. Raymond Bartee, Superintendent

The total development of each pupil to the extent of the individual's ability to develop is the obligation and objective of any school. The totality of this evolution must include mental, physical, social, and moral or ethical phases of development. The success of the school is determined by the ability of the graduates to assume their places in society to the extent that the utmost benefit will accrue to both the individuals and to society.

The attainment of the above objective requires mutual efforts of board of education, administration, faculty, parents, and students. Our most sincere and fervent hope is that your school has been able to contribute substantially to a desirable total development of each pupil.

We shall eagerly watch the individual pathways selected by our departing seniors. To each of you we express our best wishes for your success in all that is desirable and worthy.

Meeting the need...

Our schools are under the leadership of a Board of Education devoted to the betterment of our community as well as to the advancement of the education of American youth.

Among its tasks are the appointment of competent school teachers in whose hands our mental development is placed. The future of America is also held as one of its responsibilities. Such a responsibility is a large one which must be held firmly.

The total purpose of our Board of Education cannot be analyzed in words but in action. Our Board has proven itself efficient in all respects.

Mrs. Margery Baxter was invariably busy as Mr. Williams' secretary, and the scope of her duties seemed to broaden each day. She served the faculty and students, as well as keeping the books of all classes and clubs. She became a second mother to every student, whether he needed an excused admittance slip or an indispensible band-aid. Mrs. Rachel Brodine, accountant, and Mrs. Jane Rosene, secretary, performed the business transactions of the district under the supervision of Superintendent Raymond Bartee. They were always willing to help the students in any way possible.

Preparing for the future...

The Department of Agriculture offers a four year program of accredited work in the many phases of Agriculture, which must be dealt with in the business of farming and associated jobs. The department is put together in such a way that a boy is able to apply his class room instruction to his own farming project in order to gain valuable first hand experience. In addition to the knowledge which is gained, all the members have an opportunity to strive for the many goals in F.F.A. After four years of agriculture, most students have developed a belief in the future of farming with a faith born not of words but of deeds.

The Homemaking Department is a two-teacher department offering four years of accredited work in the realm of homemaking. Courses I and II provide for basic training in the homemaking arts and science. Course III moves into specialized areas of homemaking; and Family Living, offered to senior girls only, concentrates on the problems involved in establishing a harmonious home where love, faith, and security are realities, not dreams. The curriculum is so built that should a girl elect to take four years of homemaking, she will be exposed each year to new and more advanced experiences.

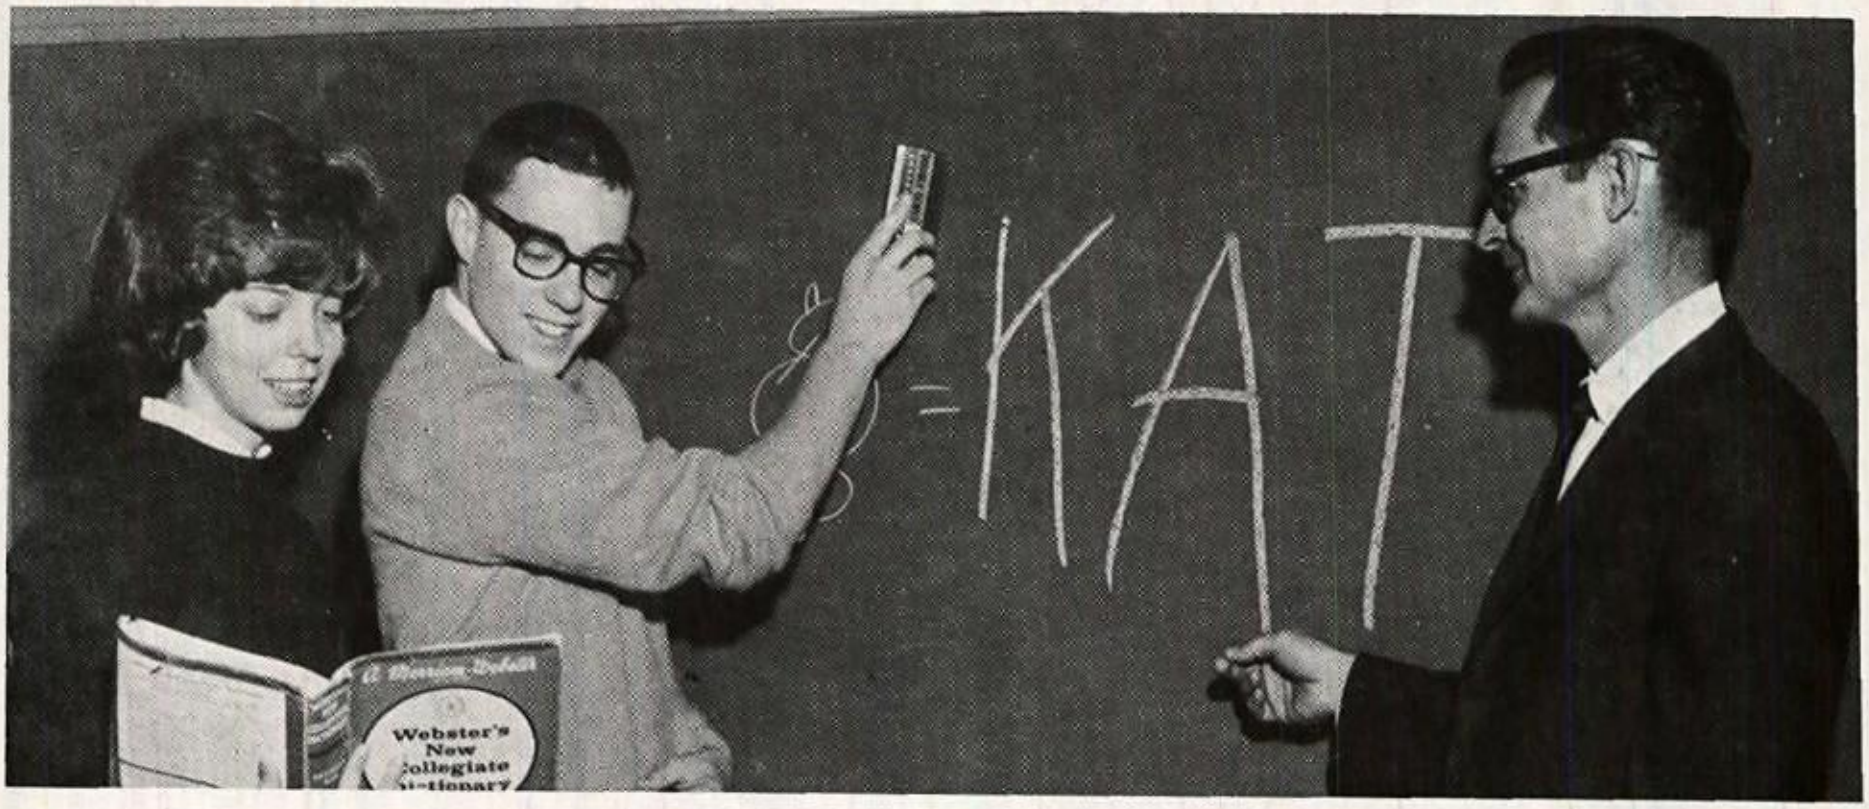
Interpreting life...

Mr. DeBaugh and two College Prep students, Vada Peterson and Jack Hebard, use the dictionary to check the spelling of a "difficult" word.



Each student who receives four years of education at Knoxville Senior High School is involved in the English program in every one of those four years. This fact gives the English Department the obligation to provide a stimulating and enriching presentation of literature, an opportunity to achieve fundamental strength in grammar, and a means to develop abilities in written and oral expression. The demands made upon the student in his English courses reflect recognition of the time-honored fact that proficiency in English is essential to ready advancement and post high school achievement. Therefore, the basic aim of the English Department is to guide the student through an English curriculum that is designed to develop the mastery of his native tongue so that he can meet the future with confidence.

Coincidental with the efforts of the English Department to prepare students for college entrance are the efforts of the Language Department. All college-bound students avail themselves to instruction in Latin and French and facilities that this department offers.

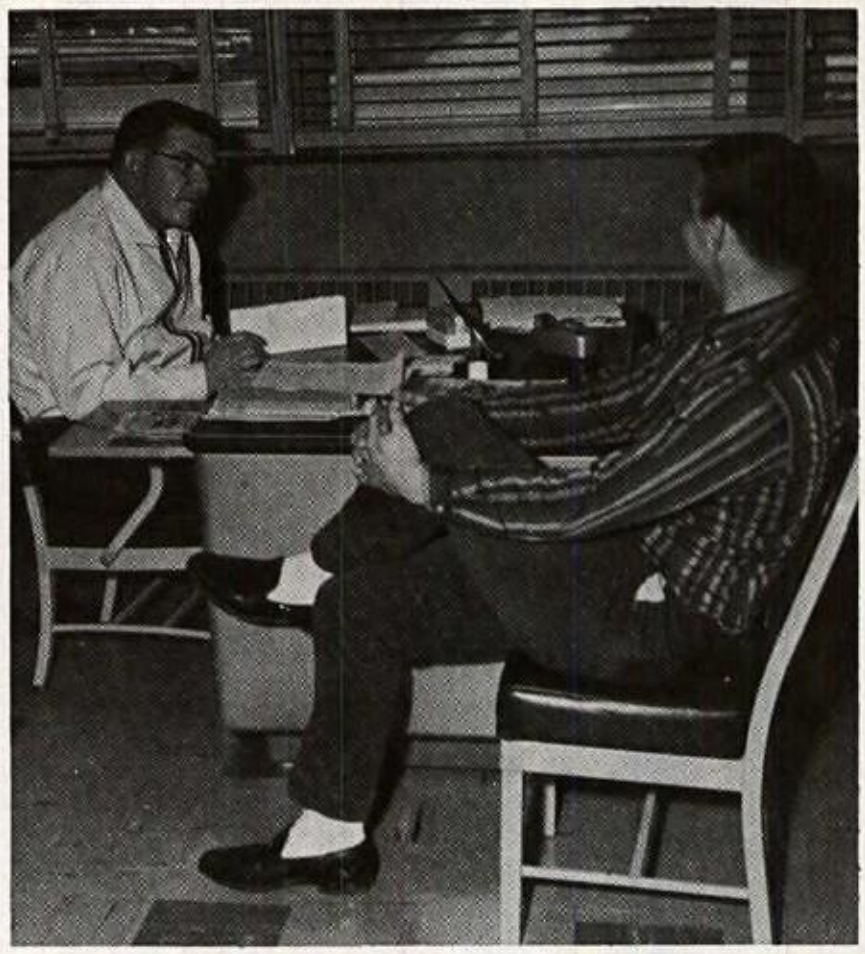
The opinion of the faculty and administration was that the needs of the junior high school student in speaking, listening, reading, and writing could best be met by incorporating all the language arts in one self-contained program.

As of now, the seventh and eighth grade program is quite flexible, but concentrates on developing skills in the pupil's understanding and usage of grammar, and in enlarging his vocabulary and comprehension of ideas. He begins to develop an appreciation of the beauty of the language both in prose and poetry and becomes aware that human behavior is influenced by each individual's interpretation of (and response to) language.

Students concentrate on spelling as Mrs. Johnson dictates.

Organizing our thoughts...

In our school a Guidance Department is made available to students seeking advice or help concerning any personal problems or plans. The Guidance Department also provides an extensive testing program for the students. These tests furnish the department with information which is helpful in determining the future plans of a student. As immediate and future plans and problems are a constant factor in the life of each student, the Guidance Department is a necessary part of school life.



Mr. Richard McKillip (B.A., St. Ambrose College), the Guidance Counselor, offers calm advice to a student.

Studying is an important factor in a student's life.

The library contains a growing collection of some seven thousand books classified according to the Dewey Decimal system and eight up-to-date sets of reference books. Access to seventy periodicals and nine daily newspapers is provided for the convenience of faculty members and the student body. Periodicals are filed for five years for use in supplementary reference material.

Searching for answers...

Mathematics plays an integral part in our lives. We are surrounded by symmetry, equality, inequality, and unknown factors. Proposing to strengthen our reasoning ability, the Mathematics Department consists of a wide range of fundamental courses.

Seventh and eighth grade math classes, taught by Mr. Liston and Mr. Logsdon, are designed to prepare the students for higher mathematics. Since one unit of math is required for graduation, each student also encounters the Math Department on the high school level where Mrs. Mumey and Mrs. Batell prove the basic principles and illustrate the practical applications of them.

The broad scope of the mathematics curriculum provides for the fulfillment of a vocational career or the pursuit of a technical profession.

Communicating through music...

"And the band played on. . ."

Under the supervision and direction of Mr. Knapp, the Music Department serves the school and the community, as well as providing students with personal inspiration and an outlet for personal expression. Divisions of both Band and Orchestra are available to students beginning with the seventh grade and continuing through the high school years.

Beginning students may join either the Cadet Band or the Cadet Orchestra. The fundamentals of music and musical instruments are taught at this rudimentary level. As the band student develops his musical knowledge, he advances into the Intermediate Band, before joining the high school Band during his freshman year. The progressing orchestra student takes a place in the high school Orchestra where his musical judgement is affected by more advanced string musicians.

Musicianship is developed through the years of practicing balance, tone, and harmony. This musical quality can be used not only in the present but also in the future.

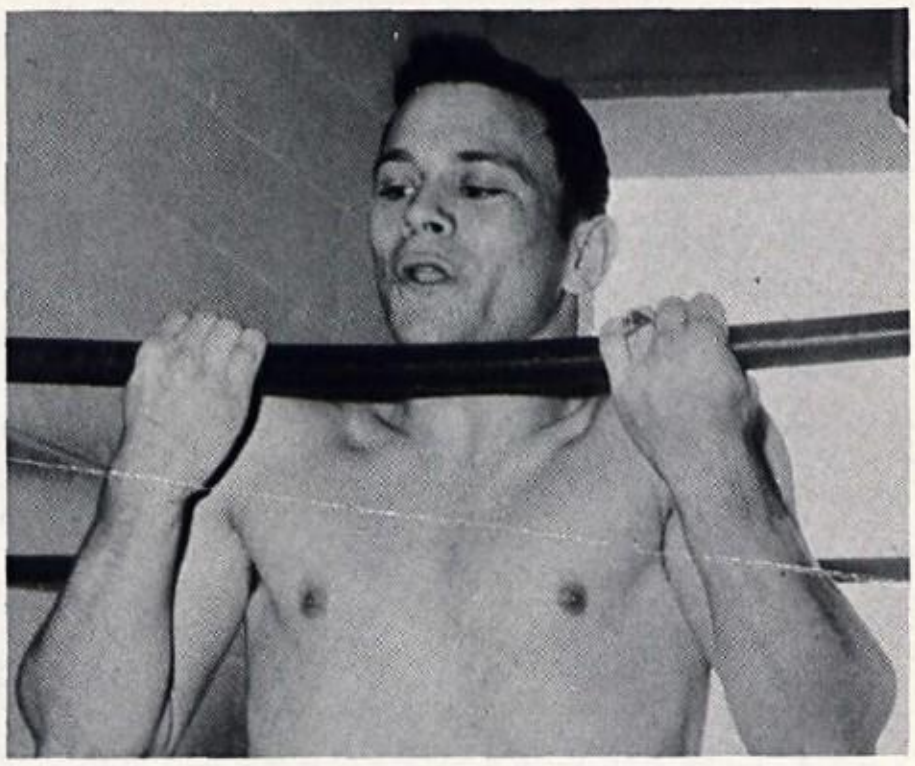
Striving for better physical fitness...



. . .eight. . .nine. . .ten. . .

Mr. Fred Johnson, teacher of junior high school boys' and girls' physical education, Miss Helen Verner, teacher of high school girls' physical education, and Mr. Roland Haddix, teacher of high school boys' physical education, comprise the Knoxville Junior-Senior High School Physical Education Department.

Annual programs in individual and group participation and studies in healthful living are planned to best benefit the physical-mental growth of each student.

The instructors in physical education are concerned with stressing to their students the importance of certain areas in these annual programs which include a knowledge of rhythm, form, co-ordination, sportsmanship, and safety. The hope of the instructors is that their students secure and maintain a physically sound self.

Tension mounts as everyone wonders where the ball is going next.

Physical fitness training starts in the junior high.

Science has always meant answers to and understanding of man's problems. This attribute of an unsatisfied curiosity has led to many discoveries which have proved beneficial to the world's civilization.

The Science Department conveys the needed understanding and inspires many young minds to pursue the courses and the respective fields of study beyond the high school level. These young scientists, in turn, shall explore the world about them and possibly unlock the secrets of the earth.

To meet the demands of the student body, the Science Department offers both junior high and senior high courses. In junior high, general science is taught by Mr. Daugherty in seventh grade classes and by Mr. Logsdon in eighth grade classes. Upon entering high school, the students are offered biology, the study of plant and animal life, lectured by Mr. Ragsdale; chemistry, an exploration of minute structures which serve as building blocks for all existing bodies, instructed by Mrs. Hotchkiss; physics, a science of matter and energy relationships, taught by Mr. Tinsley; earth science, a topographical survey of the earth, discussed by Mr. Daugherty; and general science, a brief study of the preceding sciences, also taught by Mr. Tinsley. All of these courses are offered for the express purpose of satisfying the curiosity of America's youth.

One of the departments of our school is concerned with the study of social relationships and the functioning of society. Offered in this Social Studies Department is a variety of courses. World history is discussed and analyzed by Mr. King. Mr. Stuart instructs several classes of Citizenship and American Problems. United States History, which is required of all juniors, and American Government are taught by Mr. Wolf. Sociology, a new addition to the Social Studies Department, is interpreted by Miss Verner.

The Social Studies Department of Knoxville High School is a very capable body. It does well its job of informing the young people of the past, training them to be conscious of the present, and preparing them for the decisions of the future.

While making decisions...

In the junior high school, students are first introduced to our Social Studies Department. Their studies concern the make-up of far away lands and of our land. Through this department the students are provided with a basic foundation upon which they can build their knowledge of the world around them. Faculty members teaching their respective subjects of geography and United States History at the junior high level are Mr. Johnson and Mr. Staggs.

The cooks, under the supervision of Mrs. Mary Goff, help to meet the needs of the student's daily routine. The cooks serve nourishing and well-balanced meals to the faculty and to the student body, which is divided into three lunch groups. These ladies also help at extracurricular activities when the cafeteria is used.

The bus drivers also help to meet the needs of the student's daily routine. In addition to their duties of driving the students to school each morning and returning them home each evening, these devoted men transport pupils to other towns for extracurricular activities, such as field trips and athletic contests.

In addition to their regular work during the school months, these men also maintain the buildings during the summer when many of the needed repairs are made.

Dear Woosie,

Well, this is the last time I'll be writin' in a book to ya. (except the books & write us letters) Woosie, I'll only say sure. . . remember what I wrote in your Memory book + the fun since then. . . the Orchestra trip. the French Club picnic, and all our trips to town.

Woosie, words really can't express my deep appreciation for your wonderful personality. You're so funny + fun loving yet so considerate + kind. Stay the way you are —— always.

I want to wish you the best — next summer, next football season, next year, and all the years that follow. You learn that guitar + I'll practice on my singin' + we'll make millions (heh) I wish those who'll succeed + who won't!

Woosie, I'll always remember you!

Please write + I'll write too. Further College research down is the address for right weeks.

Be Good Woosie + Remember me! See ya this summer; Some way.

Love always.

Representing...

Student Council members endeavored to act on behalf of the organizations and classes which they represented in order to best serve the interests of the student body.

Council projects throughout the school year included Student Council Week, game concessions, sales of candy, paper, baked goods, and rummage, a dance, and a corn pick-up.

Sherry Little served as President of the Council during the 1964-65 school year. Marian Spurgeon, Vice-President, and Dee Woolsey, Secretary-Treasurer, were officers elected in the spring of 1964 by members of the student body. Acting sponsors for the student governing organization were Mrs. Hotchkiss, Mrs. Welch, and Mr. Stuart.

Delegates selected from the membership of the Council attended district and state Student Council conventions in Galesburg and Chicago respectively.

Taking the necessary steps, Sherry Little, President; Marian Spurgeon, Vice-President; and Dee Woolsey, Secretary-Treasurer, led the Student Council to a successful year.

Leadership and character are two outstanding qualities necessary in a Student Council representative. Mr. Daugherty, the advisor of the Junior High Student Council, endeavored to develop these qualities in the Council members and to prepare them for future leadership.

With the eager participation of the Junior High students, the Council realized $252 profit from its various projects.

Leaders of the organization were Bob Smith, President; Mark Boyer, Vice-President; and Nancy Grohmann, Secretary-Treasurer.

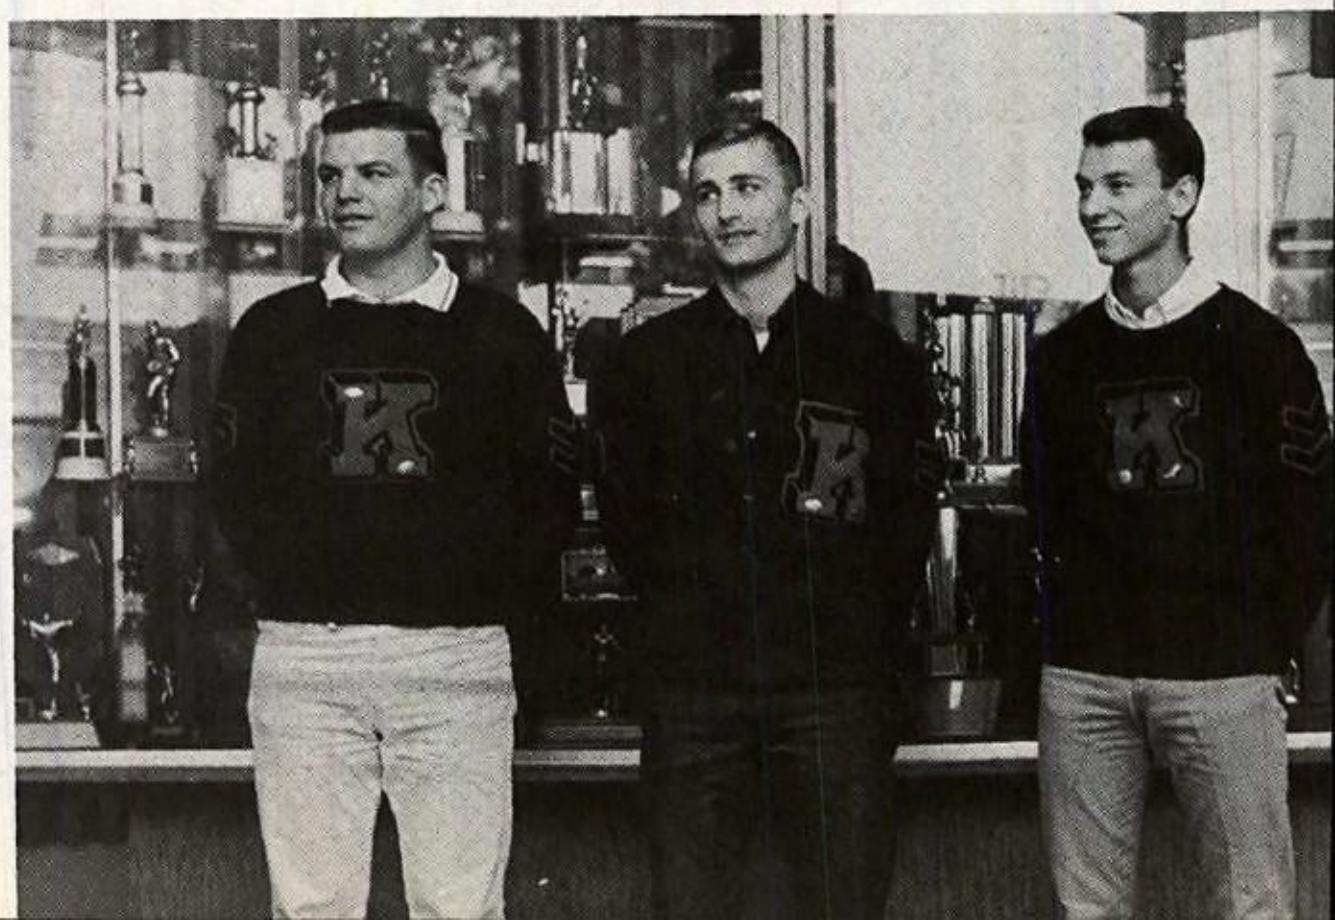
During the year K-Club sponsored several athletic activities that were interesting as well as educational. One of these was the athletic clinics which proved to be very informative for the general public.

President Geral Mathews, assisted by Vice-President Joy Hughs, led this year's K-Club through many interesting events. Dave Thompson, Secretary-Treasurer, was kept very busy writing up the notes of the club meetings and counting the money which was brought in by the candy sales, a car wash, and numerous other financial projects. Mr. King, advisor of the club, offered advice when advice was needed.



K-Club officers: Geral Mathews, President; Joy Hughs, Vice-President; and Dave Thompson, Secretary-Treasurer.

Enjoying the largest membership of its history, the Library Club had a most memorable and prolific year. Led by President Max Utsler, Vice-President Tom Rosene, Secretary Shirley Derham, and Treasurer Ross Porter, many activities were undertaken. These activities included parties at Thanksgiving, Christmas, Valentine's Day and Easter, as well as an all-school dance. The highlight of the year was an annual field trip to a college during the spring.

Members helped to make the Library a more functional part of the student body by decorating the walls and windows and buying books for the library. Having been assisted by a capable advisor, Mrs. German, the club was able to help make school life more meaningful.

Developing strength through activity...

G.A.A. members participated in fun and game activities throughout an event-packed year. On Wednesdays between four and five o'clock K.H.S. girls ran, walked, jumped, and sat as their turns at play were interspersed with times of rest.

Planning committees accounted for the hike and weiner roast, the winning of first place in Homecoming float competition, two Hobo Days, the Sadie Hawkins Dance, G.A.A. Week, the winter semi-formal dance, Christmas caroling, initiation, collecting funds for service organizations, the variety show, and the Mothers' May Breakfast.

to the wonders of science...

Some of the mysteries found in the vast field of science were explored by the Junior High Science Club with the expert supervision of Mr. Logsdon.

Students who maintained a "C" average or better and intended to major in science were eligible for membership, which enabled the young scientists to participate in the Illinois Junior Academy of Science.

Leaders in the club were Mark Bleichner, President; Bob Smith, Vice-President; Bob Tapper, Secretary; and Paula Nixon, Treasurer.

With the leaderhip of President Vada Peterson and Vice-President June LaFollette and the guidance of Advisor Mrs. Bruner, the Latin Club was a very active organization this year. Keeping an accurate record of each meeting was the job of Secretary Marilyn Knox, and balancing the budget was the duty of Treasurer Janis Hedbloom.

Two of the most successful events of the club were the initiation of new members and the Mothers' Coffee. The Latin Club Banquet, held in April, climaxed an unforgettable year.

and cultivating our minds...

The Future Farmers of America is a national organization of farm boys studying vocational agriculture. On the Chapter level, the members are given the opportunity to develop and manage their own supervised farming project programs. Together the members of the chapter farm several acres of ground owned by the school.

During the year, the members of the Knoxville F.F.A. Chapter have taken part and planned many activities. Among these were the Illinois State F.F.A. Convention, State judging contest, International Livestock Exposition, and the National F.F.A. Convention at Kansas City, Missouri. The Chapter also sponsored a chili supper for the dads in December and a parent and son banquet in March.

Recently, the Chapter has had a state winner and three section winners of F.F.A. Foundation Awards and two State Farmers, as well as receiving the rating of Superior Chapter. Don Moffitt served as Section IV Vice-President and Dave Asbury as Section IV Sentinel.

Mr. Litchfield, the advisor, has offered friendly supervision and calm advice. His sound direction allowed the members to place their confidence in him. He has done much to give his students the opportunity to learn all that they can about new methods of farming and the raising of livestock. He has helped many to develop an attitude of responsibility in agriculture as well as in life.

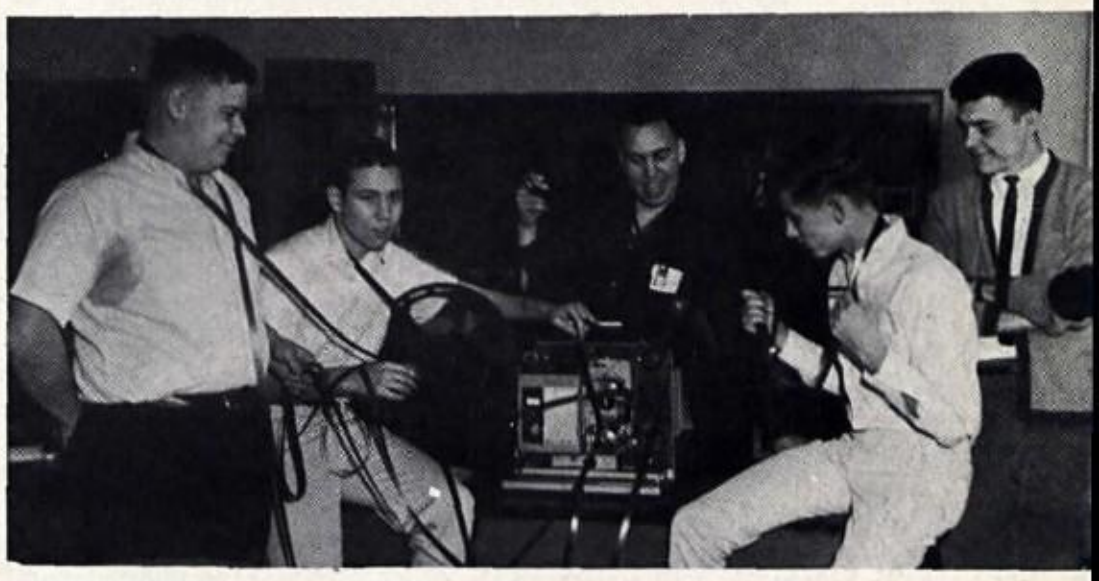
Projecting thoughts and images...

The Audio Visual Club is unique in that the equipment and complete control of the club are in student hands. Services included showing films in the classrooms and repairing equipment. The main money-making project of the club was the evening showing of full length motion pictures to students. An annual field trip to the Audio Visual Department of a near-by college or university was also planned.

The officers were Danny Crouse, President; Bill Whiteside, Vice-President; Connie Dawson, Secretary; Mark Gossick, Treasurer; Tom Bailey, Student Supervisor; and Gib Heidenblut, Student Instructor. The advisor of the club was Mr. Ragsdale.



"We can explain everything, Mr. Ragsdale," officers Gib Heidenblut, Dan Crouse, Tom Bailey, and Bill Whiteside seem to be saying.

The Junior Red Cross has carried out many worthwhile projects this year. Their thoughtfulness was shown especially at Christmas time by singing carols and by packing boxes to send overseas. The Junior Red Cross has also made contributions to the Knox County Red Cross. Leading this active organization this year were Dave White, President; Allen Sheperd, Vice President; Debbie Eiker, Secretary; and Norma Little, Treasurer. This club was under the supervision of Mrs. Sanford.

Reporting the news...

Journalism in its highest form was the aim of the members of this year's Blue Bulletin Staff as they selected and wrote their various articles. Inclusion of letters to the editor and numerous contests urged more student participation in the paper. Improvement headed the agenda as the year began under the direction of Editor Eileen Whaley and Assistant Editor Max Utsler. Additional pages provided for better news coverage and monthly calendars of events. Coupled with Mr. Burkhardt's sound advice, the cooperation among the staff members created a very successful year for the Blue Bulletin.

Editing our annual...

With the aid of an exceptionally fine staff, under the direction of Miss Shirley Payne, the fifty-seventh edition of the JESTER was sent to the presses. Editor Steve White accepted the responsibility of producing the yearbook with the assistance of Junior Editor Bill Whiteside. The job of laying out the book was accomplished by Carolyn Rosenberry and Sharyn Hedbloom. Copy editor Betsy Anderson handled the task of writing copy. Don Moffitt and Curt Clark teamed up on the sports section. Photographers Bob Davis and Bob Connour could always be counted on when a picture was needed. The Business Manager, Paul Foshay, kept the staff out of the red throughout the year.

The 1965 JESTER was marked with various changes. Full color end sheets were added along with ten extra pages. The book was also one half inch wider and one eighth inch longer than those of previous years. All changes were aimed at giving the students a better and memorable annual.

Steve White found that editing the yearbook was not all fun and games.

Cheering for victory...

Formed to work closely with the cheerleaders in promoting school spirit, the Pep Club is the only organization of its kind at K.H.S. in recent years. The members sat as a group to cheer at pep assemblies and games, learned new cheers at their meetings, and placed posters around the school to back the teams as best they could. During the year, the club made plans to expand into broader activities, such as purchasing flash cards and pom poms.

Under its leaders, President Janice Johnson, Vice-President Linda Hatch, and Secretary-Treasurer Marilyn Knox, the club has accomplished much in its first year. The faculty advisors are Mrs. Hotchkiss and Mrs. Rochotte.

The Bullets stopped them cold.

The 1964 varsity football team of Knoxville High School had a season record of two wins, two ties, and five losses. The Blue Bullets finished fourth in conference action, but tied ROVA, the conference champs, and defeated both Aledo and Alexis, who were tied for second place. The team played each game with determination and were fine representatives of the school.

The leading performers were Rod Dennis, who led the team in both ground gaining and scoring and who was elected Most Valuable Player; Max Utsler, the leading passer; Dave Thompson, the leading pass receiver; and Terry Hunter, the leading tackler. Other players who contributed much to the success of the team were Dave Trotter, Joy Hughs, Geral Mathews, Kaye Currey, and Hil Kennett.

Yes, the Bullets were the Little Six cage champs for the 1964-65 season. The Bullets were rated next to last in the conference last year and surprised more than a few people by walking off with the sole possession of the conference title.

At the beginning of the season things looked dismal. The team was small; the tallest player was only 6' 2", and with only four returning lettermen the team seemed inexperienced. After losing the first three games, the Bullets came back to win eight in a row, including three games in their own Holiday Tournament in which they won first place.

They practiced and practiced. They won more than they lost. But most of all they functioned as a team composed of five individuals playing the best they knew how.

Thrilling games, such as the overtime win against Costa and the triple overtime victory at Aledo, kept Knoxville fans on the edges of their seats and made for many happy after-the-game dances.

The scoring prowess of senior Duane Thompson, the pressure shooting of "Golden Arm" Bob Davis, and the steady ball handling of senior Dave Thompson have turned in some exciting moments for the Knoxville fans. Also the calm agility of junior Tom Whitsitt, the many rebounds pulled down by sophomore Terry Clewell, and the last-second buckets supplied by junior Max Utsler made it a season to remember.

Swishing for victory...

A desirous attitude coupled with a good team effort resulted in a successful season for the Junior Varsity basketball team. Opponents were presented with mixed emotions when they faced a harassing zone press and a tight-knit, checking man-to-man, half-court defense. With the ball not going through the hoop as often as the opposition would have liked, but more often for the Bullets, the JV's ended the season with an impressive record.

The team starters consisted of guards Mike Boyer and leading scorer Dennis Larson; the center position was held by Terry Hunter, while the forwards were Otis Burge, the second leading scorer, and Dave Trotter. George Soper and Warren Davies were two dependable subs, along with Rolland Mastin, Steve Buchanan, Chuck Drennan, Steve Putnman, and Steve Stone.

Twenty-eight boys turned out for baseball in the spring of 1964 and were easily able to win both of their games.

Because of the financial burden, Varsity baseball was allowed to continue only on a no-expense basis. In order to do this, all games were played at home, coaching and umpiring were done free of charge, and the equipment was either donated or purchased by the team.

Duane Thompson steps high to "clear one" for Knoxville.

The 1964 thinclads had a very successful season. Some of the highlights for the Bullets were capturing third in the Little Six Conference, second in the rugged Monmouth Relays, and first in the tough Knox County Track meet. This was the thirty-fourth time that Knoxville has won the county track crown, and this puts the Bullets far out in front of even the closest competitor. The track squad had good over-all balance, and was powerful in both field and track events.

Hildred Kennett, who was selected the Most Valuable Player, was undefeated in the broad jump, except at the Rock Island District.

In addition to the fine varsity season, two Freshman-Sophomore records were set in the Little Four by the Bullets. Terry Clewell set the new mark in the 220 yard dash and Dave Trotter in the hurdles.

The Junior High football team had twenty-one major award winners after a very successful season in which they won two games, tied one, and lost one. The team was led on offense by quarterback Bob Tapper in an open-type passing offense. Bob Smith and Dave White were the leading pass receivers, while Scott Eddy was the main stay on the defensive team.

Coach Johnson surveys his young tracksters.

During last year's Junior High track season, six Eighth Graders and a large group of Seventh Graders made up the team of "Baby Tracksters." Steve Putnan was a standout in the shotput and discus and was leading scorer with fifty-eight points.

With a lack of Eighth Graders, but a good turnout of Seventh Graders, the Baby Bullets were able to finish third in the Little Four Conference.

The Seventh Graders broke all but one record, and a fine showing like this points the way to a good season next year.

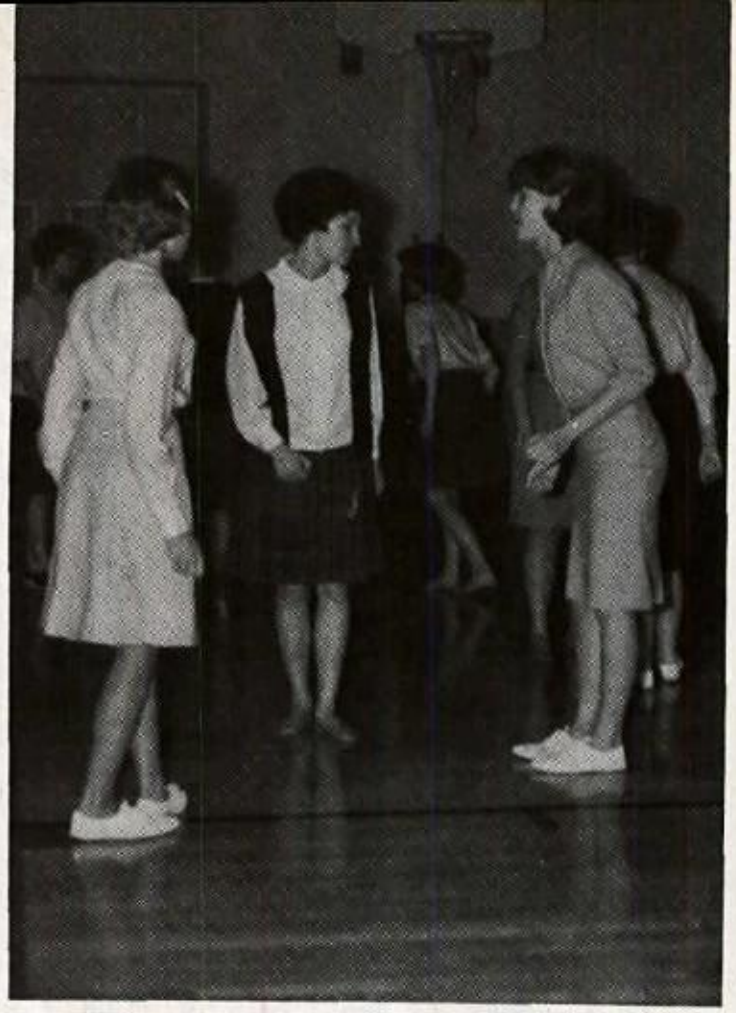
challenge of academic achievement. . .annual anticipation of class rings. . .high hopes of graduation. . .

The Senior Class Officers, President Don Moffitt, Vice-President Penny Stomberg, Secretary Janice Johnson, and Treasurer Madelyn Cowman, pondered over the many situations of the year.



Penny, Jody, and Swanie enjoy one of the after-game dances.

Anticipating the future...

Entering the halls of K.H.S. last September for their last year of high school were 120 seniors. Some were glad, some were sad, and some were indifferent to think that they were just a few months away from graduation.

In their first major activity all the seniors went about their duty of initiating the freshmen. The day was planned advance so both the seniors and freshmen found it an enjoyable event and one to remember.

As the days sailed by, the seniors found themselves with the responsibility that all the Senior Classes before them had, and that was the task of putting on a Homecoming. Hours and hours were spent decorating the gymnasium, building the float, and practicing so that all the Royalty would know what to do Homecoming night. Homecoming time came up fast and left even faster, but all the seniors who worked on it felt that they were a part of it.

Other events during the year were as numerous as they were varied. The seniors worked in the concession stand, they had dances, they had parties, they had a Senior Skip Day---they had a ball. They were a part of the Student Council, a part of the yearbook staff, a part of the newspaper staff, a part of the clubs, a part of the athletic teams---they were a part of almost everything within the school.

Probably one of the most surprising things about being seniors is the feeling that goes along with it. When they were freshmen, sophomores, or juniors, the present seniors had someone else to look up to, to ask if in doubt, someone that had had experience conducting the school activities. When they became seniors, there were no more of these older, more experienced students to ask because THEY were now the seniors. This feeling is one of responsibility, realizing that there is a job to be done and they are the ones that must do it. It is a feeling that only a senior can feel and understand.

The things which the seniors have accomplished certainly could not have been done by the seniors alone. What they completed was done with the help of their sponsors, Mr. Litchfield, Mrs. Hotchkiss, Mr. McKillip, Miss Washburn, Mr. Wolf, and Mr. Stuart. In order to partially repay the sponsors, the seniors presented each one with a gift.

From the time they began their freshman year, the Class of '65 was labeled as being "different," not particularly good, not particularly bad, but "different." The Class of '65 took pride in being "different." The fact that the class is one of the largest on record at Knoxville was being "different." They were one of the few classes that have wanted a class reunion soon after graduation, instead of waiting until everyone was old and gray. The pride that the Class of '65 had in being "different" was shown in the gift that they left to the school.

Certainly next year when school starts and the Class of '65 is gone, KHS will seem "different"--not better, not worse, but "different."

The freshmen took advantage of every opportunity to show their respect for the seniors.

These party lines are a pain. . .

Hil Kennett displays his famous broad jumping form.

Junior Class Officers: Bill Nixon, Treasurer; Rich Putnam, Vice-President; Tom Whitsitt, President; and June LaFollette, Secretary.

Hour by hour, bit by bit. . .every little bit helps.

Working toward a successful year...

Each year the juniors are a very active class, and this year was no exception. Their activities included preparing their part for Homecoming, ordering and patiently waiting for class rings, and planning for the annual Junior-Senior Prom. In order that the class could be successful in its endeavors, various money-making projects, such as the selling of school sweatshirts and the sponsoring of a smorgasbord, were undertaken.

When the success of a class is being considered, one must also include the leadership abilities of the officers. Officers this year were President, Tom Whitsitt; Vice-President, Rich Putnam; Secretary, June LaFollette; Treasurer, Bill Nixon. The work carried on by the class was done so under the guidance and supervision of the class sponsors, Miss Payne, Miss Teague, Mrs. Batell, Mr. King, Mr. Ragsdale, and Mr. Royar.

The officers and sponsors, as well as each member of the class, had a desire for accomplishment which contributed to making a successful year, characterized by hard work, new ideas, and good times.

A penny here, a penny there---all help the Junior treasury.

'Let's get on with the play," Bill said flatly.

You're beauty has rocked me over.

Sophomore Class Officers: Warren Davies, Vice-President; Diana McCormick, Secretary; Ronna Williams, President; and Tom Eckman, Treasurer.

Extending the horizons of understanding...

When organized and brought together through desire for progress, the sophomores proceeded to utilize a very opportune year. They began by electing Ronna Williams president, Warren Davies vice-president, Diana McCormick secretary, and Tom Eckman treasurer. Bob Owen, Janis Hedbloom, and Dennis Larson served on the Student Council to express and determine the wants and ideals of the classes. The sponsors who guided the sophomores' actions and activities were Mrs. Bruner, Mr. Haddix, Mr. Knapp, Mrs. Welch, Mrs. German, and Mr. Gruba.

The first class endeavor was Homecoming. Volunteering their services to various activities led to work and fun, especially their main project, the float. Although no prize was won, the sophomores were pleased with their work and proud to display "Class of '67."

Other activities throughout the year included working at concessions, sponsoring dances, organizing a Student Night, urging parents to serve a farm sale lunch, and washing cars before the Prom.

Sophomores anticipated achieving the goal that every class sets before them---a memorable Junior-Senior Prom.

"Come a little bit closer," Ronna said hopefully.

Freshman Class Officers; Vicki Howerter, Secretary; Harold Saline, President; Steve Putnam, Treasurer; and Janet Smith, Vice-President.

A year of uncertainty confronted the freshmen as they took their first step into high school life. That first step was characterized by Freshmen Initiation at which Steve Stone and Anne Williams were crowned King and Queen of the activity. Perhaps the traditional event made some freshmen feel more at ease and eager to become seniors when they will inherit the privilege of initiating the newcomers.

The Freshmen Class was lead by Harold Saline, President; Janet Smith, Vice-President; Vicki Howerter, Secretary; and Steve Putnam, Treasurer. Their activities were under the supervision of Miss Verner, Mrs. Rochotte, Mrs. Mumey, Mr. DeBaugh, Mr. Tinsley, and Mr. Burkhardt.

The freshmen will gain needed experience in the coming years and take their place as school leaders.

The Eighth Graders found themselves graduated all too soon from their period of adjustment. They worked under the leadership of Mark Turnbull, President; Kim Woolsey, Vice-President; John McCormick, Secretary; Don Totter, Treasurer. They carried on the activity of sponsoring a party for the Seventh Graders to help them in becoming accustomed to their new surroundings.

The class sponsors helped them to make decisions and develop ways of thinking that will be a necessary part of their lives in the years of high school ahead. The sponsors were Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Sanford, Mr. Daugherty, Mr. Logsdon, and Mr. Staggs. As the Eighth Graders wait to enter their high school years, they find themselves with a strong platform of ideals upon which to build rewarding experiences and memories.

Eighth Grade Officers: Don Trotter, Treasurer; John McCormick, Secretary; Kim Woolsey, Vice-President; and Mark Turnbull, President.

The Seventh Graders entered the new year knowing that there would be changes to undergo. Their first taste of responsibility as one class was the electing of officers. Those people chosen as officers were President, Rick Mathers; Vice-President, Allen Sheperd; Secretary-Treasurer, Carol Peck.

A rummage sale and dance were planned as money-making projects. The class was sponsored in its first year by Mrs. Seaman, Mr. Tarochione, Mr. Liston, Mr. R. Johnson, and Mr. W. Johnson. Under new influences, many friendships were formed that will be meaningful in the years to come.

Behind this closed door the Jester Staff spent many hours hard at work.

Well, you can't work all the time!

So it is that another season of "yearbooking" draws to a close. To us, the members of the Jester Staff, it marks the end to many hours of drawing layouts and writing copy, moments of happiness and satisfaction and still others of hopelessness and disappointment.

For me, editing this book has been a very valuable and unforgettable experience. I would personally like to thank my staff to whom goes most of the credit for the success of the 1965 Jester. I would like to make special mention of three junior members of the staff to whom little recognition has been given. They were June LaFollette, who was Junior Copy Editor, Dave Ward, who was Junior Layout Editor, and Marian Spurgeon, who was Junior Business Manager.

To you, the student, I hope that the 1965 Jester serves to bring back many pleasant memories of your stay at Knoxville High School.

Woosie,

KHS won't be the same without you next year. I don't know how I'm going to get along with Fatty and Charlie without you! You sure livned up the percussion section. I know you will feel just awful because you won't be able to see Fatty anymore. (Ha, ha) Best of luck to you in college. (Too bad I still have three more years to go!)

Lorelei

To the nicest, kindest, and most considerate person I know. I'll never forget you, Dee!

L.S.

Dee (Woosie),

Well we've been ~~together~~ in thick and thin I'll never forget you and all our good times - in band, our gigs in Biology, and in the septet. I'll really miss you next year. You're so nice and I've come to know and like you very much. I know you'll go far in whatever you do. I really do hope I'll be able to see you this summer. You're a swell person. Always stay as happy as you are!

A friend always,
Marilyn

Dee,

Had a lot of fun just about the time we were in 8th grade. Good Luck in the future.

Woosie —

yea, woosie!

As I have said before, I have wanted to know you better, well, for a long time and there never was an opportunity - perhaps because of busy lives. I will know where you are after nail, and what you are doing.

I see in woosie a kindness that few people have — and I'm so happy that woosie has it!

Woooooooooosie! (That was an interruption for a little entertainment there — for me while I'm writing.)

Every day is the woosie Day or Look Out — wherever you are. (I'm just wild about woosie....)

Lots o love

Woosie,

It's too bad you've graduated, you were a real asset to K.H.S. Of course, I guess it's only fair to let someone else take a share of that greatness.

This year has been great cheering with you. Parts of the fun came from our golf periods, which were too numerous to counts.

Mom told me you got left outs of your own graduation party — that is just like Woosie.

We'll of course miss you at church as we will every where else.

I think that you should have received some sort of award yesterday at class day, for you were so active, such a good sport, and an all around swell person.

Good luck always,

Linda H.

Woozie,

I surely am sorry about a certain incident of only a few weeks ago I hope you haven't formed a bad opinion because of that time. I think maybe you know how affairs of the heart confuse people. Good luck to you at Indiana U. and may your future be one full of joy and happiness. You a such a swell person.

A friend (I hope)

Dee

Remember French class and all the things we didn't learn. Best of luck in the future.

Caroline

Dee, Best of luck always. Everyone is going to miss you around here! I hope every thing turns out for the best for you.

Love,

Jo

Dee - We finally made it, and I'm sure that we'll always remember it. Good-luck at Indiana, but I'm sure that you will do very well. A fellow Senior Barry.

Dear Dee,
You've been a real pleasure to get to school with you. I'll remember always the things we did this year. Bieloon was different. Bertie and the drama ensemble were a delight. Being Treasurer was fun. Good luck in the future. Love Becky Jones '68"
